Some History

On October 13, 1944, three talented women -- Evelyn Marshall, Vinton Liddell Pickens, and Betty Tiffany -- brought their artwork to the first arts and crafts fair in Waterford, Virginia. These three women are regarded as the initial founders of today's Loudoun Sketch Club. By the next year's Waterford Fair, this trio had grown to a small group of aspiring Loudoun artists who proudly exhibited at the 1945 fair in their own corner-of-the-room space, calling themselves "The Hot Sketches." That name evolved ultimately into "The Loudoun Sketch Club" when they held their own exhibition in 1949. This early group of artists were social leaders and community activists who were a driving force in creating in Loudoun County an appreciation for the visual arts that not only has endured but has grown and thrives today.

About Us

The Loudoun Sketch Club is an active group of local artists working in various media. The club meets on the first and third Tuesdays of the month indoors during the cooler months. During the warmer months, weekly work sessions move outdoors to various scenic locations around Loudoun County, providing artists with an opportunity to practice their craft in plein air locations.

Besides providing artists with outdoor venues, the Club offers opportunities to meet with like-minded artists and to learn from interesting presentations. Artists may show their work in the members-only, annual spring show. Members also receive our informative bi-monthly newsletter.

The Loudoun Sketch Club is open to all residents of Loudoun County and the surrounding areas working in two-dimensional fine art.

Contact Us

Although never far from its roots of light-hearted enjoyment of visual communication, the Loudoun Sketch Club provides a resource for serious collectors who appreciate the value of fine arts produced locally.
