
OUR PRIVACY POLICY

Overview

Loudoun Sketch Club (LSC) values your privacy, and we follow current regulations and best practices to keep your personal data private. We do not sell or share our membership list or any personal information that you have not specified as public on your personal profile.

Collection, use and disclosure of personal information

LSC collects basic contact information from members to communicate with you and process sales during our shows. Most of our contact is via email although we may phone if we need to get in touch if an email is unsuccessful. We do not share any contact info with other members or with the public unless the member has already made that contact information public. Using the privacy settings on your profile you control what access the public and other members have to your information in the Membership Directory. By default, only your first and last name are available to members via the member directory. Members also may communicate with one another through our Membership Directory by using the "Send Message" form - a secure messaging system. This keeps your email private unless you choose to change the privacy of that information.

Once a member has modified the privacy settings of their contact information to public, LSC is no longer responsible for the privacy protection of that information.

Collection and use of artwork images

By sharing images of your artwork with LSC, you agree that LSC may use those images in our marketing efforts, including but not limited to our website, emails, flyers for shows, our quarterly newsletter, and our social media accounts. All images remain the sole copyright of the individual who created the artwork. Should individuals find additional publication of the images beyond LSC uses, that individual should decide what action to pursue.

Giving consent for others

If there is a need to disclose personal contact information that you have not made public via the public member directory, we will ask you first.

We use the website application, Wild Apricot, to manage our member database and to communicate with you. Information is kept secure in this site; please refer to Wild Apricot's privacy policy if you have any questions.
